The charity is currently undertaking the development and construction of a new gurdwara and community facilities. As a result, the trustees' policy is to retain sufficient unrestricted reserves to meet day-to-day operating costs, provide a contingency for unforeseen expenditure and support the continuing development of the site. Funds designated for capital development are retained to finance the construction of the new facilities and associated infrastructure.

The trustees consider the level of reserves to be appropriate having regard to the charity's current activities, future commitments and the planned completion of the development project. The reserves policy is reviewed annually.
