A Background Note

The Ulster History Circle (the Circle) was founded over thirty years ago by James Hawthorne, the then Controller of BBC Northern Ireland. Observing how people of achievement were often commemorated elsewhere by plaques, he realised there was no universal scheme in place locally to celebrate those persons whose achievements had made a significant contribution to the history of Ulster. Mr Hawthorne considered there was an opportunity for a blue plaque programme and his inspiration created The Ulster History Circle. The first Circle plaque was to the artist William Conor and is on Stranmillis Road, Belfast, opposite Botanic Gardens.

Since this beginning in the mid 1980s, the Circle has put up 263 plaques to celebrate achievers, in every county and city in Northern Ireland, and in many towns and villages too. There are ten Circle plaques in the Republic of Ireland, four in Co Donegal, two in Co Monaghan and four in Co Cavan. Every year the blue plaque programme continues to expand, thanks to those who support its activities. There is no similar body within the whole island of Ireland doing what the Circle does. With no monies of its own, The Ulster History Circle relies on finance from outside funders, and its activities depend on the efforts of its members, a wholly volunteer working committee, which has a number limited by constitution, to twenty.

Annual Report 2022-2023 Foreword

After two years of unexpected disruption, the Ulster History Circle's work to erect commemorative blue plaques and organise unveiling ceremonies had almost returned to its usual pattern by April 2022. Over the following year we were hoping to put up twelve plaques, but two have been postponed, so ten new Circle plaques have appeared across five counties and in Belfast city by March 2023. Some of these plaques were on hold from previous years on account of Covid-19, and they were joined by some new additions.

In April 2022 Francis Street in Londonderry rang with music when James MacCafferty's plaque was unveiled; in May more music was to the fore in Crossmaglen to celebrate John Hannon, and the uilleann pipes were in tune in Carnlough in June to commemorate Netta Johnston. In September our plaques became dramatic, at the Lyric Theatre in Belfast to Mary O'Malley, and in Bangor to the new city's actor-son Colin Blakely. Thomas Mayne Reid was commemorated in Drumgooland in October, then on Armistice Day John Herivel was remembered at Methodist College, Belfast. To close the calendar year, in November William Starrat had his plaque unveiled in Strabane. February 2023 saw two further plaques throughout this twelvemonth, to Dorothy Parke in Derry, another musical event of note, and to Brian Moore in Belfast, bringing home recognition of this transatlantic author. All our plaque unveilings aim to be individual, distinct, and exceptional, and the first citizens of the cities and boroughs concerned, and family members of the person commemorated attended the majority of the unveiling ceremonies.

Beginning in 2012 the Circle has put up a plaque annually in March to a woman of achievement to mark International Women's Day, except during the pandemic year in 2021 and now in 2023. Although we had a blue plaque planned and funded for IWD this year, circumstances have delayed its unveiling. Nor was it possible to unveil a Circle plaque this year in any of counties Cavan, Donegal, and Monaghan. It is the hope that our future plaque programme will ensure that both these non-occurrences are exceptions.

In April 2022 the Circle travelled en masse to Dublin to pay a courtesy call on President Michael D. Higgins at Áras an Uachtaráin. This visit had originally been planned for March 2020 but was postponed on account of covid. For those members present it was a privilege to meet President Higgins and his wife to discuss the work of the Circle across the nine counties of Ulster.

The Circle usually holds its AGM in May. Our 2021 AGM was delayed until February 2022, and then our 2022 AGM was held in June 2022. We sincerely trust that we are now back to our pattern of meeting regularly throughout the year and delivering our plaque programme without undue interruption. Our volunteer members continue to give their invaluable support to the Circle, generously sharing their expertise and knowledge. All deserve thanks for the contribution they make to our efforts, especially those who volunteer to lead a plaque unveiling. One member left our committee during the year, and another was welcomed.

Thanks are due to those bodies who have supported the plaques we have put up during the past year: Derry City and Strabane District Council, Foras Na Gaeilge, Carnlough Community Association, the Lyric Theatre; Ards and North Down Borough Council, Armagh City, Banbridge and Craigavon Borough Council, the Ulster-Scots Agency, and Belfast City Council. Several of these organisations have committed to a partnership with the Circle for one annual plaque or more.

The Dictionary of Ulster Biography represents an important part of the Circle's work and includes thousands of entries. The Dictionary, much broader in scope than our plaque programme, offers a rich and continual, expanding base of entries, all written and edited in a voluntary capacity to an extremely high standard, and has its own dedicated website at www.ulsterbiography.co.uk

The Circle always has a busy programme of plaque unveilings in progress, but it is possible to propose a person of achievement for consideration. However, it is advisable to understand that many of the proposals we receive for a blue plaque are not always accepted. It is also important to remember that any new plaque proposal must indicate how this might be funded, as the Circle has no money of our own. To discover more about our plaque programme, I encourage you to read the information included in this Annual Report, or to access the How the Scheme Works page on our web site at www.ulsterhistorycircle.org.uk

In conclusion, it is my pleasure once again to thank all those who have supported the Ulster History Circle across the past year, both with funding and in friendship, and to thank in advance those who will do so in the future.

Chris Spurr, Chairman, May 2023.

Proposing, Funding, and Achieving a Blue Plaque

An Ulster History Circle blue plaque unites a person with a location in their life, and the Circle carries out careful and extensive research into the site of each plaque. Street Indexes are checked over, site visits made, and owners and tenants consulted for permission to allow the plaque on their premises. These activities can take considerable time, especially when seeking permission to put up a plaque. The plaque wording is carefully chosen; invitations are designed and issued; a person to unveil the plaque invited; guest speakers arranged, as each unveiling is accompanied by a talk on the person being honoured, and family members, as well as members of professional bodies associated with the plaque recipient, are contacted and invited. The whole is carefully planned and co-ordinated, towards creating a single special event.

- a person must be deceased at least twenty years, unless they would have reached their 100th birthday by the date of the proposed plaque unveiling.
- the person must be associated with Ulster (nine counties) by reason of birth, education, work, residence, or vocation.
- the person should be acknowledged and recognised as having made a significant contribution to education, industry, commerce, science, arts and literature, international affairs or other calling anywhere in the world.
- the person must have a building associated with them in Ulster: a place of birth, education, residence, work, or similar.
- the Circle's plaques are to persons of achievement and do not commemorate buildings, places, organisations or movements.

A proposal for a plaque should contain the reasons for a person's nomination, a short biographical note, and a suggestion of where a plaque might be located. All proposals should also give an indication of how the plaque will be funded. The Circle has no funds of its own, and relies on such as local authorities, businesses, organisations, and individuals to pay for its plaques.

Each proposal is carefully considered by the Circle committee, and if accepted, it joins the list of prospective plaques. The list always has a considerable number of plaques pending, so a new acceptance can take considerable time to process. The Circle undertakes all the necessary work as outlined above in order to achieve the plaque unveiling but can only undertake a plaque project when funding is agreed beforehand, and in place. Proposals for plaques can be submitted to the Circle at: ulsterhistorycircle1@gmail.com

The Circle's website has undergone a significant improvement and redevelopment and can be accessed at: www.ulsterhistorycircle.org.uk

The Dictionary of Ulster Biography

The Dictionary of Ulster Biography (DUB) has its origins in the published work (1993) of the same name, compiled by Kate Newmann. Its initial 1644 entries were digitised by the Circle in 2007, and form the basis of the present on-line DUB, which is edited, in a voluntary capacity, by the Circle to a very high standard. Many of the original entries now include additional details, and new entries are added every month, with the result that the DUB currently offers information on over two thousand people. By publishing on-line, the DUB benefits from regular updating, and there are many contemporary entries, for although a person must be deceased to be included in the dictionary, the 20-year delay related to blue plaques does not apply. The DUB contains biographical information on all the persons commemorated in the Circle's Blue Plaque Programme, including many of those people celebrated by the Circle's plaques up until March 2023.

The DUB has the special advantage of being free for all to access, and is easily searchable. It is recognised as a valuable reference source, and the DUB website receives tens of thousands of visitors every year from across the world.

As with the Circle's plaques, the DUB concerns itself with persons born in, or strongly associated with Ulster. The Editor always welcomes suggestions for entries from new contributors, who will receive full acknowledgement of authorship, and copyright, although there is no payment made for entries.
