

Neillsbrook Community Development Group has been actively engaging the local community through a wide range of inclusive and meaningful activities. Highlights include an Easter colouring competition that brought together pupils from all local cross-community schools, fostering creativity and unity among young people. The group also organised an estate clean-up, with enthusiastic participation from volunteers and residents, helping to improve the local environment and community spirit. During the summer, a week-long scheme was held, offering children a blend of educational and fun activities to enjoy their holidays in a safe and supportive setting. In December, the group hosted a Christmas Celebration that welcomed local residents and the wider community, featuring performances and participation from local schools and a cross-community choir, showcasing the area's rich talent and festive spirit. In addition to organising community events, the group holds regular meetings with the PSNI and local politicians to address and discuss any ongoing issues related to anti-social behaviour, ensuring the neighbourhood remains a safe and welcoming place for everyone.
