3. ACTIVITIES AND ACHIEVEMENTS IN 2022.

Over a twelve-month period, worship services were held every Sunday, apart from when covid-19 restrictions applies, in either or both churches of St John's, Glynn and St Columba's Gleno, with an average attendance of about 30 people across both churches each Sunday. The ages of those attending have been from 1 month to over 85 years of age, drawn from across the full range of social and economic backgrounds in the Glynn and Raloo communities, and further afield to both Larne and Carrickfergus. Sunday services provide the opportunity for emotional, moral and community cohesion and development for all participants through involvement in the shared cross generational activity of Sunday worship, and in the interpersonal interactions enjoyed before and after times of worship.

This includes special community services, including the annual Community Harvest Services at Glynn, was the Annual Remembrance Sunday Service which took place on Sunday 13th November and was attended by local political and civic representatives and Christmas tree lighting service at Gleno and the Christmas Community Candlelit service at Gleno which draws people from a wide geographical area.

Children's ministry is on offer to children aged from 3 to 11 during morning service at Glynn – "Noah's Ark") provides opportunity for the emotional, moral, social and knowledge development of children participating, and training and experience in the of delivery of a structured educational programme for the leaders in children's ministry.

Over a 12 month period, 1 funeral was conducted from within the parish community. Every funeral service involves intensive connection not only with the immediate family, but also with all those from across the community who knew and valued the person who has died. While preparing for and conducting a funeral, intensive emotional, pastoral and spiritual support is given to those most directly affected. However, that specific support continues to be offered for months, and even years after the date of the funeral. In the vital area of funeral provision and ongoing support, the emotional, psychological, spiritual and community aspects of death and bereavement are met to ensure health and wellbeing is restored to individuals of this community who experience bereavement.

There was one baptism in St John's this year and one in St.Columba's Church.

The Rector serves on the Board of Geverment in Glynn Primary School.

Parish members also provide community leadership as appointed members of the Board of Governors for Glynn Primary School. In this way, they volunteer their time and skills in the service of education in the village community, and also enhance (through training) their own skills in management (from teacher appointment panels to school budgeting).

The parish also connects with the local "Hansel and Gretel" Pre-School Group, and the community Brownie groups which both operate from the Glynn Village Hall. This is both through the participation of individuals in leadership, and in the support of these voluntary community enhancing activities. Other parish individuals enhance the connections between church and community by their active participation as members of both the Glynn and Gleno Valley Community Associations, and Gleno Young Farmers Group, each as an expression of their church based community involvement.

In both communities, the historic parish churches, are a source of wider community pride, while the surrounding graveyards give a sense of community and place anchored in family history. Both graveyards are available to and maintained by the parishes on behalf of all from the whole of their wider communities.

This Review gives a brief overview of some of the activities and benefits of the shared community life of the parishes of Glynn and Raloo across the twelve month period under consideration.
